About AMB

Q2 2016: Update on the Healthcare Landscape

The AMB team spent considerable time in Q2 participating in leading conferences within the healthcare services sector. Specifically, we attended several behavioral health conferences and gatherings hosted by the American Telemedicine Association, the Urgent Care Association of America and the American Association of Orthodontists. These well-run events were immensely informative, and we are excited to utilize our refined knowledge to continue delivering excellent outcomes for our clients.

As discussed in our previous issue, the continued macroeconomic headwinds impacting global markets recently have had minimal negative consequences for domestic healthcare transaction activity. Investors increasing their healthcare exposure, continuing consolidation through further ACA implementation, strategic operators hunting for scale and a favorable lending environment all bolstered healthcare's growth. Given healthcare's favorable tailwinds, we expect major developments from Q2, such as the 'Brexit', to have little impact on valuations and M&A activity within the domestic healthcare market. Healthcare M&A activity saw a slight increase on Q1 announced deals of 369 to 379.

In some major healthcare news, Aetna is still pursuing its acquisition of Humana. The deal is expected to close by the end of this year. In contrast, Anthem's planned acquisition of Cigna appears to have stalled. Leaders from both companies have met with top regulatory officials from the Department of Justice and expect to receive a verdict mid-July. Another failed deal of note that followed the Treasury's release of new rules related to tax inversion deals was the $160 billion Pfizer-Allergan deal.

As discussed in our Market Insights, several key announcements were made that should continue to alter the healthcare landscape. Most notably, United Healthcare announced that it will exit most ACA exchanges in what could be a bellwether event. Less visible but important to AMB, was an Alaskan bill that would allow providers outside of the state treat patients remotely. If Gov. Bill Walker approves the bill, the telemedicine industry will be a beneficiary and potentially signal more states to pass the same. AMB released an overview of the telemedicine industry in our Q3 2015 newsletter (please click this link to view).

Piggybacking on our Q1 behavioral health overview, in our Q2 newsletter we are featuring an indepth review of the substance abuse subsector – with a particular focus on opioid abuse. The misuse of opioids acquired both legally and illegally is the leading cause of accidental deaths in the United States, making it one of the largest public health crises of our time. Given these facts and the frequent comorbidities that are frequently found across behavioral health, there is sure to be a rush of capital into the industry with plenty of M&A events to unfold. As with all areas of substance abuse, special attention will be placed on those quality and compliant companies that have developed an in-network strategy and can prove outcomes. Finally, AMB is proud to be a sponsor of the State of Recovery Conference being held in Hollywood, FL July 21st and 22nd. Please come visit us there if you plan to attend.

If we can be of assistance with information in this newsletter or for any transaction or wealth management guidance, please feel free to contact us.

Market Insights - Second Quarter Outlook

After a turbulent Q1, global risk assets found support from the Federal Reserve's dovish policies. As a result, the 30 year T-Bill yield was down over 12.2 percent, decreasing from 2.62 percent to 2.30 percent. Global markets experienced extreme turmoil as the majority of the United Kingdom's citizens voted to leave the European Union. This event was the first time any member of the EU attempted to leave the bloc and, as a result, added to the growing list of global uncertainties. The immediate and steep selloff in risky assets spread across the globe, estimated at $2 trillion, forcing US equities down over 5 percent in just two trading days and forcing the largest negative opening since 1987.

Investor fears seemed short-lived as a market wide rally pushed the S&P to close at a quarterly gain of 1.26 percent. It is worth noting that the United Kingdom only accounts for approximately 4 percent of global GDP, which indicates that meaningful market developments and fluctuations have been triggered by other economies as well.

Despite late-quarter volatility, AMB reiterates its belief that US and Global economies will continue to grow at a slow to moderate pace. Furthermore, we expect volatility will remain high in the short term due to ongoing Brexit uncertainty. This will likely perpetuate the unconventional strategies employed by central bankers around the globe in attempts to spur growth and combat the growing threat of deflation.

Looking back to the first quarter, S&P 500 components had an earnings beat rate of 73 percent (non-GAAP) with an average earnings surprise of 7.7 percent to the upside. However, year over year growth was -6.84 percent, driven downward by Materials, Energy and Financials. Earnings growth came from Consumer Discretionary at 21.32 percent, Healthcare at 8.03 percent and Telecom at 9.15 percent.

Prior to the UK referendum, interest rates remained relatively stable through the second quarter. AMB expects that the FOMC will raise short term rates only once this year and that intermediate and long term interest rates will continue to be depressed. This expectation is based on low wage and GDP growth, moderate capital investment and the fact that other developed nations' interest rates remain well below the US.

Catholic Health Initiatives To End Health Plan Operations — June 30th, 2016

After years of health plan acquisitions and growing losses, Catholic Health Initiatives has decided to divest its health insurance operation. CHI sought to develop a value-based strategy by integrating its hospital and health plan operations and staking out a position in the growing Medicare Advantage market. This announcement continues a familiar trend of difficulties facing provider-led health plans.

CMS Allows Claims Data To Be Sold — June 30th, 2016

The CMS will now allow pre-approved organizations to purchase Medicare claims data. The decision was driven by the CMS' intention to facilitate the emerging market for population health and predictive analytics. Gaining access to accurate and meaningful data has proven to be an enduring challenge for many organizations. Given its large base of beneficiaries and systemic importance, the CMS has one of the largest health data sets in the U.S.

Alaska Expands Telehealth — May 26th, 2016

SB 74 has made it through Alaska's legislature and awaits the Governor's signature. The bill removes the in-state presence requirements for prescribing via telemedicine and authorizes the use of technology in the clinical practices of various healthcare specialties. Alaska will become the most recent addition on a growing list of states expanding and improving their telehealth laws. The bill paves the way for a wide variety of healthcare services originating outside the state.

UnitedHealthcare to Exit Most State Insurance Exchanges — April 19th, 2016

Citing losses the hundreds of millions, UnitedHealthcare announced that it will exit the ACA marketplaces in most of the 34 states where it currently offers plans on the exchange. The move reflects widespread difficulty within the insurance industry to sustain profitable operations in the individual marketplace. The impact of the Company's exit is expected to be greatest in southern states where the it's exit will leave exchange consumers with very little to no choice of insurer.

The Substance Abuse Epidemic

Background

The current substance abuse epidemic can largely be traced back to the deregulation of opioids for non-cancer pain treatment that took place during the late 1990s. Following the successful persuasion of various patient advocacy groups and pain specialists, many states relaxed their policies and allowed opioids as a treatment for non-cancer pain. Subsequently, providers substantially increased their prescriptions of opioids while drug manufacturers bolstered marketing efforts. However, as indicated by research conducted by Johns Hopkins University, the suggested benefits of treating non-cancer chronic pain with opioids are generally quite limited. Somewhat unsurprisingly, studies have also illustrated that the sales volume of opioids and the number of opioid deaths move in tandem.

The previously mentioned liberalization of opioid prescriptions, paired with the shrinking availability of behavioral health services, has led to the dangerous treatment shortage that the country is desperately trying to combat. Fortunately, the issue is gaining substantial attention from legislators, payors and investors, creating a favorable environment for providers with scalable platforms and a focus on excellent patient outcomes. As a result, it is paramount that operators seriously assess their strategic initiatives to optimize both their competitive positioning and, more importantly, patient care.

AMB believes that in-network operators who provide medication assisted treatment will be best positioned to succeed in a market that continues to experience rapid consolidation, narrowing networks and growing emphasis on trackable patient outcomes.

Visualizing the Issue

Heroin Overdoses are up more than 539% since 1999...

Opioid Overdoses are Increasing

Legislation Will Play a Key Role in Solving the Issue

Prior Legislation

The Federal government has made several attempts to address the growing need for behavioral health services, most notably with the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act ("MHPAEA") of 2008 and provisions set forth in the Affordable Care Act ("ACA").

Key components of the MHPAEA include:

- Requires plans which offer both mental / substance abuse and medical benefits to offer them in parity with regard to co-pays, deductibles and treatment limitations
- Addresses insurers and employer group insurance arrangements for employers with more than 50 employees

Noteworthy provisions within the ACA include:

- Specifically includes mental health and substance abuse benefits in the essential benefits package
- Mandates quality reporting for psychiatric hospitals
- Co-locates primary and specialty care in community-based mental health settings

As a result of growing health budgets, CMS will continue to make up an increasing portion of the payor landscape. According to research provided by SAMHSA, total CMS spending is projected to grow from $138.3 billion in 2015 to $179.4 billion by 2020.

Impact of Prior Legislation

- Medicaid was extended to a larger range of applicants under the ACA, which fueled increased demand in behavioral health services. Medicare and Medicaid account for roughly 40-60 percent of the revenue generated from mental illness and substance abuse services
- Prior to the ACA, private insurance only accounted for roughly 11 percent of revenue generated in the behavioral health industry. The ACA is utilizing federal subsidies to mitigate the cost of private insurance, which will make private insurance not only more affordable and increase healthcare services utilization
- The ACA built upon the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act by compelling individual payors, small group market insurers, large commercial insurers and federal payors to equalize coverage for mental health and substance abuse disorders

Proposed Legislation

Currently, there are four proposed pieces of legislation targeting the gaps of the MHPAEA and ACA.

Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act (CARA)

- Status: Passed in House and Senate
- Strengthening information coordination among state PDMPs to reduce diversion of pain medication
- Improving first responders' ability to prevent overdose deaths by expanding access to naloxone
- Expanding prevention, educational and take-back programs
- Launching a medication assisted treatment ("MAT"), intervention demonstration program

Recovery Enhancement for Addiction Treatment Act (TREAT)

- Status: Awaiting vote in House and Senate
- Amends the Controlled Substances Act to increase the number of patients that a practitioner can treat with MAT therapies from 30 to 100 in the first year, and an unlimited number of patients thereafter (under specific circumstances)
- Expands the definition of qualifying providers to include nurse practitioners and physician's assistants who meet certain criteria (licensed to prescribe schedule III-V pain medications and practice in a qualified setting)

Enduring Barriers to Treatment

While both the prior and proposed legislation were certainly necessary to begin the overhaul of behavioral health in the US, there have been numerous gaps in the implementation and application of legislation. For example, in audits performed by the Department of Labor between 2010 and 2015 in relation to the MHPAEA, investigators found 171 violations. Additionally:

- Up to 75 percent of people suffering from SUD are unable to undergo treatment for several reasons
- Insurance denials are common due to "lack of medical necessity" for private, out-of-network providers
- Long waitlists are common for in-network providers, non-profits and community-based treatment centers
- Patients often learn that their only option would be self-pay or a long waitlist, resulting in either a delay in care or care going foregone altogether
- Ongoing payor-driven limitations include aggressive auditing, denials and litigation against providers

Industry Outlook

Solutions

Medication Assisted Treatment ("MAT")

Medication Assisted Treatment is a combination of medication and behavioral therapy to combat and treat opioid addiction. MAT is an evidence-based approach that is increasingly being emphasized and supported by government initiatives. The most common drugs used in MAT are methadone, buprenorphine and naltrexone.

- Methadone ("MTD") is a synthetic opioid that mitigates withdrawal symptoms and replaces the problem opioid without producing a user high
 - Opioid treatment programs provide daily doses until the patient is deemed far enough along in recovery to receive doses they can take home
- Buprenorphine ("BUP") is a partial opioid approved by the FDA in 2002 to treat opioid dependence. Buprenorphine distribution and use is more restricted than methadone due to its limited agonist effects and is dispensed in intensive outpatient programs that are authorized to dispense methadone
 - Buprenorphine is sometimes prescribed in combination with naloxone (known as suboxone) to enforce sublingual administration instead of injections
- Naltrexone is a non-addictive agonist that blocks opioid receptors so they cannot be activated and is used as a supplemental treatment to avoid relapse

Prescription Drug Monitoring Programs ("PDMP")

Prescription Drug Monitoring Programs ("PDMP") are used by state governments (and other entities through coordination) to reduce prescription drug abuse and diversion. PDMP data can be used by providers, law enforcement agencies and third party payors to identify potential high-risk users, prevent prescription drug diversion and help those suspected of abuse get access to treatment. Increasingly, policymakers and state legislatures are pushing for PDMPs to be used by Medicare, Medicaid, the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Department of Defense, private payors and pharmacy benefit managers to inform internal policies and decision making.

Key Stats:

- Only five states currently provide PDMP data access to Medicare and three states allow access to commercial payors
- 17 states proactively analyze and share PDMP data with law enforcement
- Sixteen states currently mandate that prescribers use PDMPs under certain circumstances and an additional seven states have comprehensive mandates
- Additional efforts and pilot programs are underway to expand interoperability against PDMPs, EHR systems and health information exchanges

Additional Proposals

Repeal permissive prescribing laws / rules

Increase oversight of pain treatment

Expand PDMP data sharing

Expand access to BUP treatment

Establish a residency in pain management

Mandate provider PDMP use

Use PBM / pharmacy claims to identify patients at risk

Provide physician training in pain management / opioid prescribing

Investigate high-risk prescribers and dispensers

Support restricted recipient and take-back programs

Federally funded treatment programs for patient access to buprenorphine or methadone

Summary and Outlook

As a result of key legislative tailwinds, strong investor appetite and 35 growing public awareness, the substance abuse market continues to consolidate and witness of entrance of new, well-capitalized platforms.

These factors are driving heightened M&A volume relative to the greater 25 healthcare landscape as well as strong multiples. Quality operators who are able to produce positive patient outcomes are well-positioned to benefit from these market trends.

AMB believes that M&A will continue as it becomes increasingly apparent to investors, operators and payors that substance abuse services will be an integral component of long-term population health strategies.
